PRESENTATION

Performance in sports activities is directly linked to various factors, and not only of a physical nature, but it is the combination of behavioral and attitudinal elements that, together with good organic condition, allow a high-level empowerment and thus get the tools to help the athlete to control the components at the cognitive and emotional level that generate stress, and do not allow you to reach the maximum of their abilities.

Psychology in sports is a practice that currently has gained much strength, because it has demonstrated a high effectiveness at all levels of sport. Fundamentally it is in charge of the study of the actions of the body and the mind of the person while practicing a sport.

COACHING AND PSYCHOLOGY OF SPORTS

is an excellent option that will provide you with the necessary tools to analyze the potential of each of the elements and prioritize the strategies to follow.

PRESENTATION

What's COACHING AND SPORTS PSYCHOLOGY?

Our Master in coaching and sports psychology is divided into two very distinct, but complementary, areas.

On the one hand, we have the psychology of sport, whose purpose is to provide the knowledge and strategies so that emotional skills can be emotional skills through the training of their cognitive variables. This will enable the athlete to have the control and emotional intelligence to cope with personal situations that may compromise their performance.

On the other hand, coaching applied to sport is in charge of preparing professionals for the optimal selection and application of their physical and behavioral tools. Developing techniques, methods and training that best suit the athlete.
